NHS Job Application Workshop – May 2023

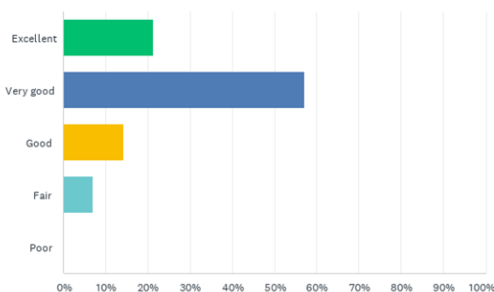

Back on the 10th of May. Employment is for Everyone partnered with the South Yorkshire ICS to run a free online workshop around navigating the NHS Job Application Process.

We know how difficult it can be for anyone to fill out an NHS application and decided to run a workshop for people to better understand the process so that an individual, or someone who supports people into employment, can learn how to make applications stand out and increase success rates.

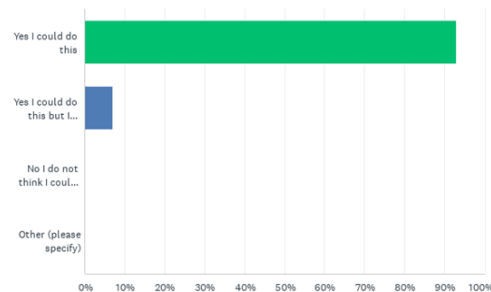

The session was ran by Dave Palfreyman– Employability Project Manager and Coach for the South Yorkshire and Bassetlaw Integrated Care System.

A total of 34 people joined the workshop from all different sectors and the overriding feedback was that it was really helpful to them and following the session felt they would be much more comfortable in filling out a job application, as opposed to before the session when most thought they would struggle.

Q1 Overall, how would you rate the workshop?

Q2 Following the training do you think you could fill out an NHS application form?

“Thank you for allowing us to come to the session, it’s great that you’re able to put these on for applicants and the session will be great for potential applicants to get more information and see how the process will work.”

“I’m from Derby & Derbyshire ICB Careers team and I attended with a view to maybe run a similar session for Derbyshire residents so this was useful, thank you.”

“Thank you very much. I support people to make applications and it is encouraging that you have been saying the same things as we do. Always good to hear direct from those involved in the recruitment process.”

“David did a great job facilitating and is a fantastic speaker. Thanks for putting on the session.”

There is a massive range of job roles in the NHS that could appeal to you or someone you work with, and a lot of them will be going on the new and improved “Employment is for Everyone” website over the coming months.
